Chris began working at Four Seasons Golf Course in 1991 and was the Assistant Superintendent from 1995-1997. He was Superintendent of Pine Meadows Golf Course from 1997-1998. Chris next worked at Iron Valley Golf Course as Assistant Superintendent from 1998-2000 and then Superintendent from 2000-2003. Chris has been at Crossgates Golf Club since March of 2004.

Mid-Atlantic USGA Update

What Happened to Spring?

By Keith Happ, Senior Agronomist

June 4, 2007

One of the most difficult variables to predict is the transition from early spring weather to summer conditions. Turf managers try to prepare for weather fluctuations by implementing sound agronomic practices, but often it is not that simple. There is always the issue of the golf schedule. However, as the saying goes, don't put the cart before the horse.

We are experiencing the annual transition from winter to summer without the normal spring conditions. Most of the Mid-Atlantic Region currently is experiencing very dry conditions. Little measurable rain was recorded in May, and many superintendents have had to adapt to the changing environment by managing more cautiously. With many areas receiving less than an inch of measurable rain during the month of May, the focus has shifted abruptly to irrigation management. Concerns have been expressed about water reserves, cost of water for the season, and if drought restrictions will be enacted.

Early this spring agronomic programs were adjusted to allow turf damaged from the harsh winter winds to recover. For example, aeration programs were altered from the normal coring procedures to using smaller coring tines, solid tines only, and omitting topdressings for fear of bruising the turf. The short term goals were to get recovery while still satisfying the golfers.

Currently, however, the weather patterns have exposed areas that are weak. Irrigation coverage may be insufficient and/or excessive thatch is not allowing moisture to penetrate. Once again, the solution will be to use some form of aeration. Star

President's Message

Dear Members,

As we move into the summer, the spring was not too bad. From what I have heard many of us have not used a lot of fungicides. But most of us have used a lot of water. During the month of May we really tested our irrigation systems. Some irrigation systems were good and some not so good. We all go through this process at the beginning of the year and make the adjustments. It is part of our job and we love every minute of it!

I would like to thank Alan FitzGerald for a wonderful day at LedgeRock Golf Club. With almost 70 people attending, the course was enjoyed by all. Alan, thanks for your hospitality.

Next, we visit Chris Martin at Crossgates Golf Club in Millersville. I'm sure that Chris will be ready for us (sorry I can't be there). Let's make sure you send your RSVP's in before the deadline or at least call Wanda (worst case) to get your name in by the deadline (send your check right away). Deadlines are set for a reason, let's stick to them.

The President Eisenhower green renovation at Gettysburg is complete. The bluegrass sod was laid on May 30th and the bentgrass (G-2) sod was laid on May 31st. Greg Borzok and I rolled the green twice with a hand roller filled with water (recovered Greg?). We also mowed it twice with a Jac422 @.175" eight days after the sod was laid. The green looks great and has rooting about one and half inches down in one week. With a slight adjustment to the irrigation system by Brad Helcoski, Atlantic Irrigation, the green and rough are getting the water they need.

This year the CPGCSA Board of Directors decided not to mail out membership cards seeing that we rarely pull them out of our wallets while visiting other courses. If you want one, call Wanda and she will send one to you. Speaking of playing other members courses: there is a protocol we all need to follow. A phone call should be made to the Superintendent's office first. If you can't reach him/her by phone an e-mail can be sent. In today's technology, phone calls, e-mails, faxes, blackberry's, and/or pigeon's can be sent to the Superintendent. Please do not show up unannounced at the golf shop or Superintendent's office expecting a complimentary round. For the most part we all can comply with a request. At times, tee times or courses will not allow this. This is why you need to contact the SUPERINTENDENT first. Remember, this is a privilege! We are a representative of a group: Central Pennsylvania Golf Course Superintendents Association.

For the first time in 18 years that I have been in the golf business I am taking an extended vacation in the summer. Peggy, Robert, Kevin and I will spend some valued time together. I hope everyone enjoys the summer with family and friends. Take the time to get away. The golf course will still be there!

Respectfully,

tines, bayonet tines, small diameter solid tines, or even small diameter coring tines will achieve the desired level of relief. There are those managers who are fortunate enough to have the option to use water injection aeration. While aeration is never accepted well by golfers, it is essential in order to maintain the health and the resulting performance of the turf.

It is not too early to focus on controlling mechanical stress. Mowing practices can be adjusted with some areas of the course being mowed less frequently. The manner in which the machinery is operated will have a significant impact on turf performance for the remainder of the year. Communicate with operators regarding how the equipment is maneuvered over the course. One bad turn can leave a scar for the rest of the summer.

As always, if the Mid-Atlantic Region agronomists can be of assistance, contact Stan Zontek (szontek@usga.org) or Darin Bevard (dbevard@usga.org) at 610/ 558-9066 or Keith Happ (khapp@usga.org) at 412/ 341-5922.

Heather and Gorse

By Mark DelSantro

Q: How do you know when an attorney is about to lie?

A: Their lips begin to move!

Give us your poor, your tired, your hungry and what do we get in return??? What a world, what a world, and let me tell you our world has changed! It's funny (funny strange, not funny haha!), that when the first World Trade Center bombings happened in the early 1990's, we thought it an anomaly. When Timothy McVey and Terry Nichols blew up the Oklahoma City Federal building in 1995, we thought it a freak of nature. But obviously, the third time is a charm, for when those planes were flown into the twin towers on September 11th 2001 and those towers came down, it was then and only then that we all came to realize that our world had changed. Our safe haven of the United States was no longer totally safe... quite frankly, a barrier to entry had been perpetrated and we could no longer feel 100% comfortable.

Thus, enter the "Fort Dix Six" who plotted and planned to kill 100's of US Army soldiers in training down in southern New Jersey and also had plans to attack Dover Air Force Base. This one I tend to take a little more personal as my wife's two younger brothers are currently at Fort Dix training for three months prior to being deployed to an area about 180 miles north of Baghdad. Furthermore, my father-in-law works at the Dover base. Irking me the most is that in the world and in the country and in the current state in which we all live, that there are the civil rights attorneys that argue that these terrorist have rights. Wasn't it that Shakespeare fellow who suggested killing all the lawyers?

Listen, do I think civil rights are important? Absolutely! I believe our general position on civil rights is the main thing that differentiates our country from all others... Let's face it freedom is something we have going for us, which is nice! In my 44 years of living, I can't remember any instance of a person defecting from the US to Cuba or China or the old USSR and yet we've let thousands (or in the case of Mexico, millions), enter our melting pot of a country and stay with numerous free benefits! All that being said, when our country and our people are being threatened on our own soil, I believe a line has to be drawn and policies must change.

As I understand it, most of the European countries are considered free... their residents have civil rights up until the point when the safety of the country and its citizens are threatened, then essentially all the rules go out the window. And furthermore, they aren't afraid to let any terrorist know this up front. I believe this to be one of the things that they got absolutely right over seas and unfortunately, we've got absolutely wrong.

As some of you know, I have an older brother who took a temporary work position in Italy in the early 1990s and ended up a permanent German resident, rarely returning for an occasional visit. When you walk through the airport in Munich or Frankfurt, one of the most blatantly obvious things are the 6' 4", 240 pound, blonde haired, blue eyed, Uzi carrying military police that frequent the gate areas. When it comes to homeland security, they don't compromise! And the rights of any would-be terrorist... As my uncle Vito used to say... Forget about it!!!

All of this directly ties to our current immigration policy (or as some would say, our lack of a legitimate and enforceable immigration policy) and, in my never to be humble opinion, is one more reason to tighten up our borders. Of the six Dix, three brothers, Dritan, Eljvir, and Shain Duka were all illegal immigrants who were smuggled into the country in 1984 by their father through Mexico. Interesting it is to me that essentially, in the past ten years, these brothers have cumulatively been criminally charged seventy-five different times by the police and they were still on the streets to plot an attack on Ft. Dix. By the way, I didn't stutter and this is not a mistake, seventy-five different times??? You can't be serious! What's wrong with this picture?

Now, do I really believe that securing our borders would have stopped 9/11, Ft. Dix, and possibly the JFK Airport plot this past weekend? The answer to this would have to be most likely not, but I'd sure feel more confident about the odds! Of course the other side is that if 9/11 never happened, would the Ft. Dix and JFK groups ever have been caught prior to a terrorist attack?

Listen, I'm not a fear monger! Believe you me I realize that you have a better chance of getting hit by lightning than getting killed by a terrorist. That being said, I believe you have your own back yard... in other words, what happens in Europe and the Middle East happens in Europe and the Middle East. This is like the home field advantage in sports... this country is our house! You should have total control of what happens in your backyard. You have less control of what happens in your neighbor's yard. As I heard one talk show pundit say the other day... Control what you can control and let God and the military handle the rest!

Probably the biggest challenge moving forward is to get our politicians to agree on a border policy that makes sense and actually works (see the aforementioned reference to the odds of getting either struck by lightning and/or getting killed by a terrorist). The hoot of this all is that most all of this discussion could have been null and void had the Simpson-Mazzoli Immigration bill of 1986 been acted on and enforced. Back then it was apparently agreed upon that in exchange for ~3 million illegal immigrants gaining amnesty, the country would get control of the borders, enforcement of laws requiring employers to identify illegal immigrants prior to hiring them, and no more amnesty for future illegal immigrants. A great idea if there ever was a way to make it all work and now our challenges are much steeper.

The problem is that when you get that many lawyers into a room at the same time, by nature, they'll always disagree and ultimately never agree to disagree, resulting in their propensity to never come to a conclusion on anything they're attempting to conclude! In the end, in my opinion, when you have 100 Washington DC lawyers buried up to their necks in sand, you don't have enough sand! That's my world changing, Shakespearian, civilly right, backyard owning, all to often forgetting about it, sometimes criminal, never charged, fearful, enforceable, and always challenging point of view from the heather and gorse.
